HISTORICAL NOTE	The Dental Association of Victoria, established in 1889, was instrumental in establishing the Dental Hospital. A public meeting called by the Association was held at the Melbourne Town Hall on 4 July 1890. This meeting resulted in the establishment of the Dental Hospital.<sup>1</sup> The Hospital was initially located in 239 Lonsdale Street, Melbourne<sup>2</sup> and later 189-191a<sup>3</sup> for the treatment of the poor. Members of the Society gave their services free of charge and assisted in the teaching and training of dental students. In 1907 the hospital moved to the premises owned by the Australian College of Dentistry in 193 Spring Street, Melbourne. The hospital was incorporated under the name of the “The Melbourne Dental Hospital” pursuant to Section 4 of the Hospital and Charities Act 1890 by Order in Council published in the Government Gazette 30 August 1899. Name changed to The Dental Hospital Melbourne.<sup>4</sup> A further name change occurred in November 1969 when the hospital was renamed The Royal Dental Hospital Melbourne<sup>5</sup>. From its commencement the hospital was administered by a Council, elected by subscribers and life governors. During the period 1897 to mid 1926 most members of the Council were also members of the council of the Australian College of Dentistry. Records provide evidence of joint meetings of the Councils of both bodies as well as special meetings of the separate councils. This practice continued up to mid 1926 when the two Councils commenced holding separate Council meetings. Various reasons for this have been put forward. The main reason appears to have been a requirement under the Hospitals and Charities Act for the hospital to be clearly seen as a separate entity. In 1925 the Charities Board made its first formal grant of £100 to the Hospital. This was followed by further grants until in 1937 the Charities Board upgraded the status of the Hospital from that of ‘Sundry Benevolent Homes’ to ‘Other Public Hospitals’. This upgrade meant that the Board became more interested in the day to day operations of the Hospital.<sup>6</sup> This involvement continues today in the successors to the Charities Board.

	Planning for a new dental hospital began in the 1920s. Minutes of the Council of the Australian College of Dentistry and the Council of the Dental Hospital indicate that discussion and lobbying of the Government were well under way by 1927. In 1935 the site of the former Haymarket in Grattan Street, Parkville was chosen as the preferred site for the new hospital.<sup>7</sup> Problems of funding and ownership of the proposed site delayed the commencement of construction until the mid 1950s. The new building, along with its teaching facilities was officially opened in 1963 by the then Premier Sir Henry Bolte. The hospital provided a range of dental services and for the teaching of dental students, dental nurses and dental technicians. In 2003 the hospital moved into its fifth home, 720 Swanston Street, Melbourne. From 1904 when the then Australian College of Dentistry became affiliated with the University of Melbourne the Dental Hospital has played a role in the provision of dental education in Victoria. Over the years the Faculty of Dentistry, later Dental Science, and the Hospital have worked closely in curriculum areas of dental education. Useful publications: Atkinson, H.F., In defence of ivory towers : the history of the Royal Dental Hospital of Melbourne, typescript ; illustrated by mounted photographs. Atkinson, H.F. The Centenary of the Royal Dental Hospital of Melbourne 1890-1990, printed by Waterwheel Press, Melbourne, 1990
