HISTORICAL NOTE

The Organ Historical Trust of Australia was formed at a public meeting held in St.Paul's Cathedral Chapter House, Melbourne, on the 13th of May 1977. Conceived as a means of extending the work done by the National Trust of Australia, its stated aims are: (1) to preserve historic pipe organs and organ building records, (2) to stimulate public interest in pipe organs which are of national or local importance, and (3) to encourage scholarly research into the history of the organ, its musical use, and organ music.

In order to fulfil some of these aims, the society regularly produces a newsletter, 'O.H.T.A. News', convenes an annual conference (the first being in 1978) and, when awarded a Myer Foundation grant and later an ANZAC Fellowship, employed John Stiller as a Research Officer to travel throughout Victoria, N.S.W. & South Australia documenting pipe organs of 'outstanding historical significance.'

While membership of the O.H.T.A. remains open to all, it was, in its inception, thought that most members would fall into one of four categories - (i) those with a general interest; (ii) those with a specific historical interest; (iii) organ builders; and (iv) university staff who teach the pipe organ or related subjects.

Financially, the Trust was established as a non-profit organisation. Its income is derived from membership subscriptions, grants (e.g. Myer Foundation, ANZAC Fellowship), donations (e.g. a donation made by Charles Ivor Matthews in the form of a scholarship establishment fund), and fund raising appeals. Apart from the Research Officer's salary, other main expenses include the publication of the 'O.H.T.A. News', the organisation of the annual conference and occasional appeals for the preservation of specific pipe organs (e.g. the James Moyle organ in 1983).

DATE OF TRANSFER	1987
ACCESS CONDITIONS	Collection open except for copying of the John Stiller reports which can only be done for requesters who represent the current organ owner, or if it is for personal use or research, ie, not commercial.
DESCRIPTION	See Series Index below
NOTE ON COLLECTIONS	This collection of O.H.T.A. material, accessioned in 1989, reflects many of the aims and endeavours of the Trust. While containing minute books, correspondence and annual reports dating from the organisation's inception, the bulk of the collection is made up of 202 reports documenting historically significant organs. The records of the organ building company, Hill Norman & Beard, complement the O.H.T.A. material and enhance the overall research value of the collection. These records include four specification & order books, numerous architectural drawings, and brief biographical notes about the company's employees. N.B. Accession 93/56 comprises 246 technical drawings of Hill, Norman and Beard (Australia) Pty. Ltd, organ builders and suppliers, and complements the Hill, Norman and Beard material in this accession.

GENERAL CORRESPONDENCE

2/1

Organ Historical Trust of Australia General Correspondence 1975 - 1985

Inwards and outwards correspondence contained within a manila folder labelled, 'O.H.T.A. Correspondence (Maybe worth filing later)'. As this suggests, these letters have not been filed in any systematic sense, though they are all addressed to, or written by, either Mr John Henwood (Secretary and Treasurer), or Mr John Maidment (Chairman). In keeping with standard archival practice, we have retained their original, if random, order. It must also be noted that, in addition to correspondence, this folder contains photographs of one or two organs discussed in accompanying letters, newspaper clippings, and brochures publicising organ recitals or other organ-related organizations.

Subjects discussed in the correspondence include:

- Evaluation and restoration of historically significant organs
- Liaisons with similar overseas organizations and individual organ experts
- Lobbying churches and city councils to restore their historically significant organs
- Organisation of the O.H.T.A. annual conference
- Membership drives and fund raising appeals for the restoration of specific organs

Date Range: 31 October 1975 - 18 January 1985
